UltraRAD Inks License Agreement with ScheduleQuest

Expands product line to include UltraSCHEDULER

Largo, FL – November 16, 2004: UltraRAD Corporation, a solutions provider specializing in the implementation of PACS and Teleradiology, and ScheduleQuest, Inc., a software development firm specializing in automated patient access and scheduling technologies, is proud to announce a license agreement. Under the terms of the agreement, UltraRAD acquires ScheduleQuest's install base and an open source license to SQ Connect 2.0

"The addition of the ScheduleQuest open source license and client base adds another quality product to our portfolio and an untapped customer base for both sales and support opportunities," says Bill Giunta, VP of Operations for UltraRAD.

With the knowledge and experience UltraRAD possess with over 15 years in the industry, this agreement expands their product line to include UltraSCHEDULER. . ScheduleQuest designed their patented patient scheduling solution for hospitals, diagnostic imaging centers, physician's offices and call centers. The integration of both of these company's specialties is a crucial step for providing a single source solution to the hospital and imaging center market as they look for a fully integrated PACS solution with scheduling capabilities.

UltraRAD will be showcasing the integrated UltraSCHEDULER product at the up coming RSNA convention in Chicago, IL, booth # 4954.

"This relationship is a perfect fit for our going forward licensing strategy, and ScheduleQuest is excited to add UltraRAD to its growing lists of partners," according to Steve Ralston, CEO of ScheduleQuest, Inc.
